- To recognize the barriers to our own communication.
- To acquire new words and techniques that enhances our ability to respond to other people.
- To assist individuals overcome their interview anxiety and attend them with a higher level of confidence.
- To assist them in comprehending grooming etiquette and corporate culture.

For engineering graduates to succeed in their future careers and get accessibility into the workforce, effective communication skills are crucial. Effective written, oral, and interpersonal communication skills help students become more emotionally intelligent and empathetic by helping them understand the people they are speaking to. These abilities also play a big part in preparing graduates to be global citizens.

In order to succeed in this cutthroat society, students must develop a wide range of talents and abilities throughout time. It takes time for a student to develop these skills through daily practice. These are the kinds of skills that are useful not just in academic institutions but also in constructing a successful professional career. A strong personality can be developed through soft skills. In the end, having good soft skills can aid in boosting confidence, which is a highly valued quality in the industry sector.

The Training and Placement Cell has scheduled a soft skill development program on 11 March, 2024, from 09:00am – 04.00pm, with the goal of improving the students' abilities and knowledge; instill and enhance the fundamental soft skills that all students must possess in order to appear for the recruitment process. Personal interviews, group discussions, writing and communication skills, resume writing, presentation skills, and SWOT (strong, weakness, opportunity threat) analysis were part of the training. Attendees for the training event included third-year students from every department.

Outcomes:

- CO1: To develop the kind of active listening that enhances interactions with others.
- CO2: To recognize the barriers to our own communication.
- CO3: To acquire new words and techniques that enhances our ability to respond to other people.
- CO4: To assist individuals overcome their interview anxiety and attend them with a higher level of confidence.
- CO5: To assist them in comprehending grooming etiquette and corporate culture.
